

also recommended education in such cases as will enable them to earn a livelihood, and an appropriation of $5000 for the purchase of land to aid such purposes. Referred to the Committee of State Affairs.

On motion of Mr. Goodwin, the House bill with reference to the time of holding District Court in the Twenty-ninth Judicial District was called up and passed.

Mr. Goodwin, from the special committee on Agricultural and Mechanical Improvements, reports that the funds had been misapplied; that there was not enough left to complete the buildings, and asking the passage of a bill authorizing suit against W. A. Sawyer and E. Mitchell on notes amounting to $82,000. Report received and bill read.

Adjourned until tomorrow.

STATE GRANGE.
TERMS, IN ADVANCE.

WEEKLY.....$0.50

MASTERS OF GRANGES ARE AUTHORIZED AGENTS.

All Communications should be addressed to
J. W. DOWNS,
Editor and Proprietor.

THE GRANGE,

Waco, TEXAS, No. 27. Regular monthly meetings: two o'clock P. M. first Monday in each month. Call Meetings every Thursday evening at seven o'clock. Visiting and excommunicating Brethren are invited to attend. C. M. HURRY, Secretary.

THE GRANGES of Sullivan county, Missouri, have triumphed recently in this way: The members of the High Point Grange sold their pork, by means of co-operation for $3,423, when those farmers who are not members, could only realize $2,80. This shows a clear margin in favor of the Grangers of 23 per cent.

The Order is represented to be everywhere that State, with wonderful rapidity and is silently working a grand revolution in the affairs of the farmers, and one that, while it injures no legitimate material interest, is of the utmost importance to them. May we not hope for the farmers of Texas, the same beneficent results, upon a completion of the organization of the Order in our State. Co-operation raises the co-operators of the farmers of today, and they can not fail.

We extract as follows from the address of the Master of the National Grange, delivered in St. Louis on the 4th inst. We regret that an unusual press of matter precludes the publication of the entire address, which is very able:

"At our last annual meeting there were represented nine State Granges, having under their jurisdiction about one thousand, three hundred subordinate granges. To-day there are State Granges in thirty-two States, two Territories, and the Province of Quebec, in the Dominion of Canada, all of which were present through their chosen representatives, and claim under their jurisdiction nearly twelve thousand subordinate granges in America. The causes which have led to this great uprising, which have rendered the work of organization possible and even easy, are few, but grave, and mainly of a nature never contemplated by the originators of the Order. In its inception it was intended to be chiefly a social and educational institution, something after the nature of a farmers' club, only more comprehensive in its plan, including both sexes, and rendered more attractive by a pleasing ritual and the subtle charm of secrecy. It was intended to bring together at frequent and stated periods the agricultural population to interchange views, discuss agricultural, literary and scientific questions, and cultivate the social amenities of civilized life. In short, it was intended to improve the standing of the tillers of the soil mentally, morally and socially. As such it has been and is being a most magnificent success. Though some other features which have been grafted on the parent stock at a latter day have occupied a more prominent place in the eye of the public than this, yet it cannot be denied that none are of equal importance to the permanent welfare of the Order and its members, for, really, moral worth, mental power, and social culture lie at the foundation of all real progress. There is danger that we may lose sight of the rock on which we build."

"We must keep the subordinate granges up to a high standard of efficiency, and not be carried away with the charm of novelty. Co-operation is a thing worth your special attention. Most manufacturers have been found ready to sell direct to granges at wholesale rates. With the manufacturers of reapers and mowers the case has been different. Not that they are unwilling to do so from any principle or prejudice, but no one State was strong enough to show them that they could offer a more certain market for their wares than could be obtained through their present system of agencies. In such cases as these it is the duty of the National Grange to lend its aid to the State granges, or by itself grapple with the difficulty. The subject of co-operative stores is one in which subordinate granges have manifested much interest, but the want of definite information as to the most improved and successful plan of conducting them has prevented their general establishment. I am of opinion that the National Grange should propose a careful and elaborate plan for such stores, using therefor the abundant materials which the experience of the Rochdale and other societies afford.
